Wer erinnert sich nicht an die unheilvolle Zeit der Kontaktbeschränkungen während der Coronazeit.

Die Möglichkeiten zu musizieren beschränkten sich auf den engsten Familienkreis oder auf kleinste Besetzungen oft auch im Freien mit dem gebotenen Abstand. Da damals keiner genau sagen konnte ob man überhaupt mal wieder im Orchester gemeinsam musizieren darf, war Hoffnung auf bessere Zeiten das Gebot der Stunde. So entstand, ursprünglich für Blechbläserquartett, die Canzone de Esperanza, ein kleines Lied der Hoffnung, welches unter den entsprechenden Auflagen schon bei Gottesdiensten aufgeführt werden konnte.

Die hier nun vorliegende Bearbeitung für Bläserorchester eignet sich ideal für festliche Anlässe bei denen besinnliche Musik zu Gehör gebracht werden soll, um so den Zuhörenden ein musikalisches Stück Hoffnung zu schenken.

Das vorliegende Arrangement kann ganz oder in Teilen mit einem vollständigen Holzsatz, ggf. unter leichter Blechunterstützung, musiziert werden.

Who doesn't remember the ominous time of contact restrictions during the coronavirus era?

The opportunities to make music were limited to the closest family circle or the smallest ensembles, often outdoors with the necessary distance. As no one could say for sure whether they would ever be allowed to play together in an orchestra again, hope for better times was the order of the day. This is how the Canzone de Esperanza, a little song of hope, was created, originally for brass quartet, which could already be performed at church services under the appropriate conditions.

This arrangement for wind orchestra is ideal for festive occasions where contemplative music is to be performed in order to give the audience a musical piece of hope.

This arrangement can be played in full or in parts with a complete woodwind section, possibly with light brass support.
